

What is happening at Menlo Park?

In the last few years, the Menlo Park historic site has been transformed from one of New Jersey's "10 Most Endangered Sites" into a site with a bright future.

The non-profit Edison Memorial Tower Corporation DBA/Thomas Edison Center at Menlo Park (TECMP) has taken the lead to improve the site. Major TECMP accomplishments include:

- In 2015 the historic Edison Memorial Tower was re-lighted at a grand Rededication event. An enthusiastic crowd was on hand to kick off the campaign for the museum's expansion.
- New exhibits have been added to the Museum, and a spacious park has been designed for visitors to picnic and enjoy nature walks on the site.
- Tower upgrades include a modern sound system that allows for hourly chimes and music to be played during special occasions.
- Tours of the Museum are offered to all guests. Specialized tours can be arranged for large schools, clubs and scouts to enjoy. Specialized presentations are offered for an additional fee.
- A six foot incandescent light bulb, a donation to the Center, has been installed on the site.
- Annual visitation to the Center exceeds 18,000 and continues to grow.
- Original Edison memorabilia is for sale in the Museum gift shop. Postcards, Edison style light bulbs, books, mugs, ornaments, magnets, and T-shirts are also available.
